

MEN AND MACHINES

The Ferrari F430 with 490break horse power goes from 0-100km in 4 seconds and has a top speed in excess of 315km/h. Pretty cool. It makes an awesome noise too, though the consensus was that the stripped out Porsche 911 GT3 was the most impressive sounding vehicle, and the Aston Martin Vantage V8 the most attractive vehicle. The Audi TT was probably the best engineered vehicle, and the 1967 Holden HR - well, it was the classic of the night. A car racing driver, a mechanic, a preacher, and a kebab van, along with a lot of planning (thanks to David Brown and Will Barrett) made for a great night.

The message of the night was not lost amongst the kebabs, revving of engines, and admiration of fast cars. Men and Machines was about the message that our very lives should be run with one eye on the manufacturers manual. The Bible is God's insight into what makes us tick, and how we should live!!

A Ferrari F430 (the cheapest Ferrari one can buy) and Aston Martin Vantage V8 - something for the kids to dream about.

Neil gives some tips of the trade on how to look after your car, what some of the tricks are that dealers and mechanics might try on you, and the importance of always referring to your owner's manual!!

How is it that this guy, who is shorter than Craig by a head, is a world champion F3 racing car driver?

One of Britain's greatest exports....this Aston Martin V8 Vantage makes anyone look good.

Vegetables - there were clear signs of vegetables added to the traditional night-out kebab. There can be no complaints from the women-folk this time around!!
